

Togetha: A Better Way In

Founding Partner Briefing · Working version · Massachusetts

A safe, supported framework for friendship and dating for autistic adults and adults with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

Togetha joins a calm, accessible digital platform to trained dating coaches, relationship-skills support, and in-person matching events. A member chooses their goals, pace, support, and privacy. The working web app uses synthetic demo data, is preparing for supervised volunteer testing, and is not open for public accounts.

Why this matters

- 95% of 69 adults surveyed wanted friendship, dating, or romance.
- 45% named confidence or anxiety as a barrier, versus 12% who named technology difficulty.
- 35 adults volunteered to help test the working build.

Built now

Four member-chosen screen styles; consent-based supporter access that a member can revoke; visible safety tools for sensitive sharing, money requests, reporting, and help; and privacy-respecting provider/moderation tools.

Coalition + next careful step

Hopeful Hearts provides mission governance and scholarship administration. The Eunice Kennedy Shriver Center contributes research and training. WORK Inc and dating coaches support the human programme. South Shore AI builds and operates the platform. The member remains at the centre of relationship and consent decisions.

A founding partner can focus a briefing on supervised testing, coach training, matching events, safety infrastructure, or scholarship access.

Book a private walkthrough: calendly.com/scottpralinsky/togetha-demo

Sources: Hopeful Hearts Dating, Friendship & Relationships Survey (69 adults, August 2026); verified working build; approved Togetha marketing brief. Metrics include their scope and caveats.